Position Papers

Revolution: Demanding Progress or Endorsing Chaos?

School Name:
Committee Name:
Country Name:
Topic:

Introductory paragraph: Brief summary of the topic and the main issues surrounding it. Include your country's stance on the issue and a short preview of any related policy that your country has instituted regarding the issue. Keep this paragraph succinct (approximately 4-6 sentences) as you will expand on these issues later in your paper.

Background Information: This paragraph is a more in-depth history of the problem and attempted solutions both locally in your nation and internationally. In essence, establish the significance and history of the problem. This paragraph should include:

- Origin of the problem
- Scope of the problem. Why does it matter on an international scale?
- Any relevant statistical data pertaining to the issue both globally and in your specific nation
- Previously implemented solution by the United Nations and by your nation
- Reasons for success or failure of the previously attempted solutions

Possible solutions to the program: This paragraph is the key part of the position paper. List potential solutions to the issue and how the solutions would be implemented. Remember, you may not have a pre-written resolution, but this paragraph can be used to spark debate and support for your solutions. This paragraph should include:

- Specific proposals on how to address the issue
- The feasibility of the solutions and how they would be implemented
- Global impact of the solutions

Concluding paragraph: Concisely summarize the issue and your primary proposed solutions. This paragraph should be no more than 4-5 sentences.
